A Faint Hope.

Signals were heard from the imprisoned Curry miners up to mid night on Friday. There they ceased. Mr. Patton thinks that the heat of the fire has melted the air pipe or a cave broken it. As cold water was being sent down, the pipe might have withstood the fire. If a cave took place near the imprisoned miners they might have gone at once to the cave and by hard work with the picks opened a way to the break in the pipe. Or they might have been driven away from the air station by the fire and opened the pipe with their picks at some safer place. With these chances there is still hope of their being alive.

GOULD & CURRY DISASTER.

A Death Blast in the Lower Levels.

ELEVEN MEN IMPRISONED IN THE BURNING DRIFTS.

Terrible Scenes About the Mouth of the Shaft.

At 9 o'clock on Friday evening a dispatch was received in this city that the Gould & Curry Mine was on fire and that a number of miners had been burned to death.

The APPEAL printed a small bulletin, and it was distributed on the streets before 10 o'clock.

THE FIRE

Was first discovered at the mouth of the Bonner shaft, its presence being detected by the rising gas. This was about 7 o'clock, and the alarm of 10 bells was at once sounded. The news spread rapidly along the streets, and the first to reach the shaft were numbers of women whose husbands were in the mine. They crowded about the mouth of the shaft with piercing appeals to everybody to help rescue the men below, but hardly anything could be done, as in a few minutes dense volumes of smoke and deadly gas were rolling up the shaft, and no man could exist half a minute anywhere below the floor of the works.

The air compressors were at once rushed to their fullest capacity, and all that the blowers could possibly carry was sent down to the men who were supposed to be imprisoned in the 400, the 800 and 1500 levels.

The engineers stood at their posts with wet handkerchiefs over their faces in the face of the heat and gas, which so filled the hoisting works that the lamps nearly went out, and objects were hardly discernable. Several courageous men tried to go down the shaft, but it was soon apparent that such an attempt was the sheerest madness.

A RESCUING PARTY

Next made an attempt to enter the mine by way of the Mint Tunnel, but after getting 1,200 feet into the Curry ground found their light going out with the gas, and were compelled to retreat.

The next attempt was made by way of an old tunnel belonging to the water company and after several attempts the party reached the bodies of Joney Morgan and Andy Bean. Bean was lying within 50 feet of a door, 600 feet from the mouth of the tunnel. Had he reached the door he could have closed it after him and thus shutting off the gas, escaped.

About 100 feet East were three other men, John Tronsee, Robert Bruce and George Carpenter. There was still breath in their bodies but they died soon after reaching the air, though every effort was made to save them.

A TERRIBLE SCENE.

When the bodies of the dead were brought out the scene was simply heart rending. The relatives of the dead men crowded about the spot and when Mrs. Bean and eight children saw the body of Andy Bean, their misery quailed the stoutest heart.

A RELIEF DRIFT.

On the 1,500 level were six men and there comrades at once began a drift through the solid rock hoping to reach them in 12 hours. The drift was run all day yesterday by a force of the quickest, strongest miners on the ledge, who worked like tigers and changed the shift every ten minutes. A crowd of men stood there all day awaiting their turn at the pick and drill. The work progressed as fast as hammer, muscle, stout heart, cold steel and blasting powder could send it.

NO ANSWER.

At 2:30 in the morning signals were made to the imprisoned men by hammering on the rock, but there was no answer.

It is expected that a connection will be made this morning. Not a sound had been heard up to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but still there was a hope that they might be found alive. Not a moment will be lost until the place where they are is reached.

MR. PATTON SAYS

There is no doubt but that the men were alive up to 12 o'clock Friday night, for at that hour they heard sounds distinctly. After that the signals ceased, and he expresses an opinion that the air connection was broken at that time, either by the fire melting the pipe or by a cave of rocks and timber in the shaft.

Dr. Prentice a Skillful Physician.

Dr. Prentice graduated first in his class from the Cleveland Medical College nearly twenty years ago. While a student there he became assistant to the President of that Institution in his difficult surgical operations. After graduation he practiced his profession in Monroeville, Norwalk, Cleveland and other places in Northern Ohio. Later, he visited Europe and acquired an enviable reputation in London, as well as since in many of the cities of the country. The writer has known the Doctor personally for 24 years. His skill is natural as well as acquired, his success phenomenal, his reputation merited. Any information relative to the Doctor can be obtained at this office.—Gazette.

See the Doctor's advertisement in another column, as he will appear in Carson shortly.

"The Cars" Wheelmen.

The Carson Wheelmen has organized with the following officers: Hume Yerington, President; L. Frohman, Secretary and Treasurer; Howard Wright, Captain; Homer Thaxter, Assistant Captain; H. R. Michels, Color-bearer.

The club adopted a resolution to the effect that all goods needed by the club should be purchased through home dealers.

When the club makes its first appearance there will be eighteen "cycles" in line. As one of the younger members of the club expresses it, "This club will be a lasting ornament to the town."

An Opportunity to Go East.

An excursion party will leave Reno for Chicago and all other points on the morning of July 5th. C. S. Young of Reno, manager and full particulars may be learned by corresponding with him. Sleepers are to be fitted up and all expense for Pullmans avoided. The rates are as follows: To any point on the Missouri river, $15.00; to Chicago $47.50; to New York $62.50. The round trip rate is respectively double the amounts named. Mr. Young expects to fill two cars with excursionists.

The Mechanic Arts.

A Tribune correspondent says: "It was thought that when the University was transferred to Reno a mechanical department would be instituted for the benefit of the boys of Nevada. The proposition however seems to have dropped."

The proposition ought not to be dropped. The law says distinctly that the University shall teach "the mechanic arts," and a failure to do so may involve it in serious legal difficulties.

Burglary.

Yesterday morning Mr. Connolly the tailor entered his shop to find that it had been burglarized and several suits of clothes taken. Some were wholly in use and some were nearly so. D. Cline lost a $90 suit. Mr. Siddons in the building lost $20 worth of goods. The entire loss will amount to about $200. The thieves got in through a back window and there is no clue.

RAINFALL IN NEVADA.

The Silver State Claims that it is Not Increasing.

The Silver State in a recent article on rainfall in Nevada says: Several newspapers in the State continue to assert that the annual rainfall is increasing. There are no facts whatever to substantiate this statement, but the papers, probably because they have nothing else to make an item of, keep repeating it. Every old Nevada knows that the Spring and Summer of 1862 were the wettest ever experienced in the State since the settlement by the whites, while last year was one of the driest, and this year so far is but little wetter than 1886.

In June 1867, the United States Government established a Signal Office at Winnemucca. The records of the office show that in that period the average annual rainfall has been a little less than nine inches, while the greatest rainfall of any year did not exceed 11 inches. These records are reliable, and furnish much more satisfactory proof than the contrary assertion of persons who have, perhaps not more than two or three years in the State that the rainfall is not increasing however desirable it might be to have it so.

The sooner people disabuse their minds of the idea that there is a perceptible and steady change in the climate of Nevada; the better for all concerned. This is an arid region, and liable to continue so for generations, and the only thing that can be done in the way of reclaiming its sage covered plains is to make the best use of the water which now flows into sinks and evaporates, and get what we can from underground sources through artesian wells.

Mr. Friend the Meteorological Observer of the State, who has carefully computed the rainfall for years, asserts positively that it is increasing. It may be that in the vicinity of Winnemucca it has not been so pronounced, owing to the absence of trees. Tree planting brings rainfall and the result is where there are the most trees there will be the most rain. If the people of Winnemucca will keep this in mind they will notice a marked increase of rain as has been noticed in Ormsby and Washoe counties.

An Extraordinary Yield.

In conversation last evening with T. A. Reed of Franktown, relative to the remarkable adaptability of the Truckee Meadows for alfalfa, a Gazette reporter was told that last year Mr. Reed's ranch of 100 acres situated in the South end of this valley, produced 800 tons of hay, or eight tons per acre. Mr. Reed said he received his information from Mr. Reed's son, who believes it to be true. The amount on which this remarkable crop was raised was seeded 24 years ago, and was never plowed.

This is an immense yield, but there is plenty more land in Nevada that will do the same thing if utilized.

WHEN HE WAS SEEN.

SHENANDOAH, Penn., June 25.—Jack Snow, a noted Republican politician of Shenandoah visited the city yesterday and attracted much attention by strolling along the streets costless. During the Blaine-Cleveland campaign he worked hard for the Plumed Knight, and when he learned of his defeat he exclaimed: "I'll never wear a coat again while a Democratic President occupies the White House." He has kept his promise. He has just returned from a trip to Scotland, which trip he also made costless. In winter he dons two or three suits of underclothing, and is thus enabled to withstand the cold.
